URGES WOMEN TO SUBSCRIBE FOR "EDICT"

Is Official Organ of Federated Woman's Clubs, Representing 75,000 Women

NEXT MEETING FEBRUARY 6

Is there a woman among us who does not like to know what the neighbors are doing? Is there a club woman among us who is not interested in knowing what other clubs are doing? Verily no, for such a woman does not live.

If we wish to know what the neighbors are doing we read the Antioch News. If we wish to know what the Woman's clubs are doing all over the state we read the Edict.

Community interests demand the local weekly paper. We could not do without it. Through its columns we are kept in touch with such items of general interest as make of us a community.

Possibly we could discard some of our high brow magazines, but the village paper we must have. A man may live and even vote in the village, but he is not a citizen of that village in a true sense until he becomes so interested in the life of the people around him as to subscribe for the paper in order that he may know what they are doing and speculate as to the causes thereof. He is interested in the births, deaths and marriages. Through the advertising columns he communes with the merchants and knows to a certainty when and where prices are to be reduced on certain commodities. He learns when he may expect his favorite movie actor.

He posts himself in regard to the proceedings of the Village Board and the Woman's club and contents himself with knowing that at least, they are doing no harm. Only to the extent that he is interested in these matters is he a true citizen of the community in which he lives.

This also is true of the Woman's club. Only to the extent that our club women become so interested in the work carried on by other clubs as to eagerly seek information regarding it. Can it be said they are real club women—members of that Federated body of 75,000 thinking women with the forward look. The better we know our club activities the more we appreciate them.

The Edict is the official organ of the Woman's club.

It is published on the first day of each month by and for women, in their interest. In its columns we find the Federation News and the varied club activities through out the state. We are informed as to the scope and aim of women's endeavor along lines of Public Health, Child Welfare, Women in Industry, Co-operation With the Ex-Servicemen, Parliamentary Law, Home Economics, Applied Education, American Citizenship, Legislation and Civic Improvement. The Woman's club is today a great force for good in the United States and its official magazine may well have the attention of every one interested in public affairs. Mrs. L. B. Grice is the "Edict lady" and will gladly place your name on the subscription list.

Owing to the fact that there are five Mondays in this January, the next regular meeting of the club will not occur until Feb. 6. This arrangement is necessary in order to maintain the regular schedule of meeting the first and third Monday of each month.

The committee having in charge the program for that date have arranged for an interesting exhibit of heliconias owned and loaned for the occasion by the people of the community.

If in your possession there be an old clock such as ticked off the years for your grandfather, an old bible or book of any description long ago. Old coins, dishes, cooking utensils, candle sticks, lamps, newspapers, adults wearing apparel or antiques of any description dear to you because of association and memories and interesting to the public because of age, will you not please

Town Topics

One of our local tonsorial artists had the "flagging fever" Sunday morning. It was his intention of flagging the 6:40 flyer. Arriving at the depot at 6:30, he waited until 7:30 before he heard a "foot-toot." Jumping out he started his first flagging stunt, only to find he was flagging the milk train. Shortly after the "cow special," left another "foot-toot" was heard. Again jumping out on the platform, started flagging again, but when the train pulled up found it was only a freight with a peevish engineer. At 8:30 that familiar "toot" was again heard in the distance, but this time his efforts were rewarded, for the flyer had arrived—almost two hours late, and one day's flagging job was finished.

Some of the smaller kids that go skating over at Lynch's pond fall down so much they are sitting half the time.

The other half the time is spent getting up.

When morning comes they have to stop and think whether they were sent to bed with a spanking, or whether they had been skating.

The ice reminds them of a kimono—it's easy to slip on.

Each day finds a number of inspectors looking over the road and the telephone poles on Main street, wondering where to put them when the new road comes through.

If each of the inspectors were to do a day's work worth while, here, the poles would already be transplanted in half a dozen different places.

But inspectors are inspectors and work is something else again.

They just roam around and look wise. They wouldn't know where they were going unless they read their destination point on their railroad tickets.

One fellow was almost to his station and had to go back and find out what he was sent to inspect.

And by the time he got back the "boss" had forgotten he had even sent him.

Regardless of the fact that they continue to call it moonshine, most of it is handled in broad daylight.

A subscriber rushed in one day last week and said, "Put up your screens, I just saw two robins."

Wonder what happened to those same two little robins in that zero spell of last Sunday.

High '5' Wins From Gurnee by 36 to 10 Score

Antioch high school traveled to Gurnee Friday evening and defeated the high school team of that town by a 36 to 10 score. Haley was the outstanding star at gathering points, making 22 of the 36, while Spafford collected ten to his credit. Ames played a wonderful defense, which accounts for the few points made by Gurnee. The lineup:

Gurnee Antioch
Abelgrins.....rf..... Haley
Theobald.....lf..... Spafford
Bask.....c..... Chinn
Gustafson.....rg..... Ames
Hart.....lg..... Gray
Substitute—Gillette and Dedlow, Gurnee; Wertz and Tiffany, Antioch.

In the first game of the evening the Gurnee town team swamped the Waukegan Boosters by an overwhelming score.

Town Team and "High 5" in Game This Evening

There will be a basketball game this evening at the local high school between the town team and the high school five. This will no doubt prove a close and interesting game and a large number of rooters are expected to be on hand to see how the two teams compare.

First Candidate for State Treasurer Is Announced

The first announced candidate for state treasurer is Oscar Nelson, of Geneva, Ill., county treasurer of Kane county and for many years a republican leader in northern Illinois.

Mr. Nelson is a banker, two times mayor of Geneva, a former state president of the John Ericsson Republican League of Illinois and is an officer in the state association of county treasurers.

In his formal announcement Mr. Nelson says: "I come from a district whose counties always return large republican majorities and I solicit the support of all citizens who desire the state treasurer's office run strictly according to both the letter and the spirit of the new law regulating the office."

Mr. Nelson will begin at once an active campaign for the nomination, taking him into every district in the state.

Commercial Ass'n Elects Officers for Coming Year

The annual meeting of the Antioch Commercial association was held Tuesday evening in the town hall. The officers elected for the coming year were: Dr. W. W. Warriner, president; Herbert Vos, vice president; Elmer Brook, treasurer; Fred Hawkins, secretary; Charles Sibley, W. F. Ziegler, Chase Webb, directors.

Plans were discussed as to activities to be assumed for the coming year and some of the projects planned will require the whole-hearted support of every member of the association.

The lack of interest shown in the association lately is greatly deplored and the new officers will make every effort to stimulate enthusiasm in the coming meetings.

The lighting system on the main street under the coming improvements was one of the subjects discussed and was greatly regretted that a larger attendance was not present that the views of all the members could be obtained. This is one of the subjects that will be brought up at the next meeting.

Will Hold Community Auction Sale Feb. 18

Plans are being made to hold a community auction sale on Feb. 18, at which time the entire furnishings of the Lee Savage home will be disposed of to the highest bidder. Several others have signified their intention of entering goods to be placed on sale at the same time and a big sale is being predicted. Auctioneer W. J. Chinn will be in charge of the sale.

The fire at Camp Lake last night was a barn in connection with the Consumeraice house. The ice house did not burn as rumored here this morning.

Editor of the Antioch News:

One of your main features, no doubt, for the older residents of Antioch, is the column headed "Twenty Years Ago in Antioch." They take pleasure in recalling ancient history. You, assuredly, are glad to be able to give it to them.

But for us, the younger set, it spells woe. Only last week I saw—"Born to Mr. and Mrs. etc." There is no telling how many more it will reveal ere the brakes are properly applied.

Sincerely hoping you will comprehend my tip, I am, yours in all respect, A NINETEEN-YEAR-OLD.

County Producers Elect Chas. Sibley and W. D. Dunning

At the meeting of the County Milk Producers yesterday two local men, Charles Sibley and W. D. Dunning, were elected as directors to the Milk Producers' Association. This is Mr. Sibley's second term.

Gene Wilton was elected as chairman of the county board.

A meeting of the local of the Milk Producers Association was held Friday at the village hall and officers for the coming year were elected. President Scott was re-elected and A. Reutner retired as secretary under the stress of other business. Louise Kufalk was elected as secretary.

Mr. Dunning unfolded plans formulated by the committee elected at Elgin, of which he is chairman. The committee's report has been accepted by the board of the Milk Producers' association and turned back to the committee for presentation at the annual meeting of the Milk Producers.

One Killed; One Seriously Injured at "Death Crossing"

Joseph Garwood, aged 55, of Grayslake, is dead, and Burr Smith, of Grayslake is in the Wooster Lake sanitarium in a critical condition, his skull fractured, and perhaps internally injured, as the result of an auto accident at Welsh's crossing, on the Fox Lake road, Friday morning.

Smith and Garwood were returning to their homes in Grayslake, after their day's work as carpenters. As they turned the corner at Welsh's crossing, the Ford in which they were riding turned turtle hurling the men against a telephone pole near the edge of the road. Garwood died instantly, but Smith was rushed to the Wooster Lake Sanitarium immediately, in a car that was passing almost at the time of the accident.

The corner where the fatal crash occurred has been the scene of many serious accidents. It is the place where Dr. Reegan was killed about six years ago. The Fox lake road at this point goes down a steep hill, and immediately at the bottom is a sharp turn. The slippery condition of the roads is thought to have been responsible for the accident.

Consecration and Confirmation at St. Ignatius' Church

On February 1, St. Ignatius' day, the patronal festival of this mission, the Suffragan Bishop of Chicago, Rt. Rev. S. M. Griswold, will visit this church for the purpose of consecrating the church edifice, and administering the sacrament of holy confirmation.

The service of consecration will take place in the morning at 10:30 at which time the bishop will pontificate and administer the holy eucharist. The service of consecration consists of psalms and prayer, and the sentence of consecration after which follows morning prayer and holy communion. Every communicant of the church should be present and make his communion at this time.

In the evening at 7:30 the bishop will administer the sacrament of holy confirmation. At this time the confirmation class will be presented and confirmed.

All of the lay readers and clergy who have ever served at St. Ignatius' church will be present on this occasion and participate in the services.

Everyone in Antioch is most cordially invited to be present at both of these services whether he is a member of the Episcopal church or not. This is an opportunity that only comes to a church once in a lifetime and no one should miss it.

The services, both morning and evening will be played by Mr. Fred Fuller, of the church of the Atonement of Chicago.

St. Ignatius' Church Notes.

The confirmation class will meet on Saturday evening and Sunday evening from 5 to 6. All services as usual next Sunday. Church school at 9:45 and morning prayer and sermon at 11 a. m.

Preliminary sketches have been made by Chicago architects for the fine summer hotel that Alderman Frank T. Fowler, of Chicago, contemplates building at Sand Lake. It is intended to erect a two story frame structure with forty rooms, also a rifle range, court, golf links and bowling alleys at a total cost of $40,000.

Last Wednesday about noon flames were seen issuing from the roof of the Bellevue hotel on the north shore of Powers Lake and within a few minutes it was burned to the ground. The loss being between $8,000 and $10,000, practically covered by insurance. The hotel will not be rebuilt.

SOO DEPOT AND LUMBER OFFICE SAFES ARE BLOWN

Take Only Small Change—Loot Telephone Cash Box and Freight Office

IS WORK OF AMATEURS

Safeflowers broke into the Soo Line depot and the office of the Antioch Lumber & Coal Co. last night and blew the safes at both places.

At the depot the outside office door was jammed open and a half-inch hole drilled just above the combination and the outer door blown from its hinges. The inner compartment was left open and a few dollars in small change taken. The blast shattered the concrete lining of the safe.

After the blowing of the safe the bandits next pried open the door of the freight office, but it is reported nothing was taken.

The cash box of the Illinois Bell telephone was also rifled.

This is the second time the depot has been broken into within the last year.

At the Antioch Lumber & Coal Company office the safe-blowers met a more difficult task. Threethen attempts were made to drill holes in the eight-inch door, but the re-enforced steel door would not yield. Pieces of broken drills were found on the floor. The largest drilled hole in the door being less than one-half inch deep. A charge was placed in this hole, but the blast was not strong enough to jar the door loose. The knob and combination were chisled half way off and then battered and broken off and all holes and door cracks were plugged up with soap. The safe contained only ledgers.

The cash drawer in the desk contained about $1.00 in pennies, which were taken. The men made a heeey get-away, leaving a drill and about eight feet of wire used for setting off the charge.

No clew was left at either place in which to trace the "job" which, no doubt, was the work of amateurs.

MOTHERS AND DAUGHTERS

Read This Letter from Mrs. W. S. Hughes

Greenville, Del.—"I was under the impression that my eldest daughter had some internal trouble as ever since the first time her sickness appeared she had to go to bed and even had to quit school once for a week. I always took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound myself so I gave it to her and she has received great benefit from it. You can use this letter for a testimonial if you wish, as I cannot say too much about what your medicine has done for me and for my daughter."—Mrs. W. S. HUGHES, Greenville, Delaware.

Mother and oftentimes grandmothers have taken and have learned the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. So they recommend the medicine to others.

"Philip Severn," he repeated slowly, his glance wandering again to my face. "You are a friend of Clement Breckenridge—is that right?"

"Why, yes," I answered. "I have known him for some years."

"I thought so; I don't forget a face often, but never heard your name before. I was waiting at the bank to see Breckenridge a few days ago, when he came out with you from his private office. He seemed very friendly. Well, now, Mr. Severn, what's been taking place here? Some hot fight, hasn't there?"

His tone was friendly enough, and it was quite evident that my acquaintance with the banker had already given me a new standing.

"This is the end of the Alva murder and robbery," I said directly; "one of the men is dead, the other lies in there senseless, while the money they were after is there also in a valise untouched."

"Good God! What money?"

"So you didn't know about that, even I, well, I'll tell you. Captain Alva was killed by gain possession of a large sum which had been paid him for revolutionary purposes in Chile. These fellows inside found out about such a payment having been made and waylaid him. They had to kill him in order to get the money."

"Who did it?"

"I am not quite sure, sergeant, but I think Gaspar Wine committed the murder. He plunged from a window and is lying dead down below there. The other fellow is still alive and was going to share in the spoils. You know him, I guess, a Russian Jew by the name of Waldron."

"Van Waldron, the Red orator?"

"That's the man. I'll tell you the story briefly; all that needs to be told now is I had reason to suspect these two and hid in that closet, where I could overhear them discussing a division of the spoils. The two quarreled, during which Wine was forced out through the window. Then I got the best of Waldron, just as you fellows tried to break in."

The sergeant looked about, plainly puzzled.

"I guess your word ought to be good, Mr. Severn," he admitted. "Seen as who you are. You live in Washington?"

"Yes—officially; my home is in Ohio."

"Where yer stopping here?"

I told him, naming the hotel at which I was registered.

"All right, then. I'll look around a bit; Morris, run down and call the patrol; have 'em get that body down out of there first when they come; Kelly, you stay here, with Halsey at the door."

I followed him and the fourth officer into the inner office. It was a wreck, but the sergeant took the scene in at a glance and picked his way across to the shattered window. The policeman bent over the outstretched figure of Waldron.

"How is the cuss, Carr?"

"Alive, all right, but got a h—l of a crack on the coco."

"Give him a glass of water in the face. Is this the grip you was telling me about, Mr. Severn?"

"Yes; it's locked, but supposed to be full of yellowbacks."

He pulled it forth from beneath the grasp of Waldron's arm.

"All right; I'll see it safe out o' here. I guess you'll have to go along with us, Mr. Severn; the captain will likely want to ask some questions."

CHAPTER XV.

The Private Secretary.

I told my story to the captain much more in detail, and Breckenridge being found, stood sponsor for my identity, so that I was not detained. The next morning I testified before the coroner's jury over the crushed body of Wine, and later appeared in the room of the grand jury which indicted Waldron. On both these occasions I told enough to make matters reasonably clear, yet carefully avoided any direct mention of Miss Gessler. No doubt her name would be brought into the case later, but I was determined it should not be introduced through any indiscretion on my part. Krantz's name was used, but only indirectly, and the impression was left upon me that influence was being brought to bear to shield the banker from any direct connection with the crime.

I know that when the time came for trial I could scarcely hope to escape thus easily. Under cross-examination by the defendant's attorney, the whole affair would be probed to the very bottom, and I should be compelled to disclose every bit of information I possessed. In the meantime I must discover the girl, and learn from her own lips, if possible, just how deeply she was involved. Then, and then only, could I decide upon my own future course. But how was I to locate her? I had nothing to guide me in the search. They were only two people to whom I could turn for even a suggestion—Krantz, the banker, and Sarah Waldron. I doubted if either would reveal the truth, but I could use the threat of exposure against Krantz, and might thus terrorize him into revealing the truth. I decided that if the girl did not call me by phone before noon the next day I would certainly exhaust every effort to find her. She would assuredly learn by that time what had occurred, but whether she so desired or not, I was not willing to let her drop out of my life. I would learn, at least, whatever Adolph Krantz knew about her.

The hours dragged away bringing no message, the silence merely strengthening my resolution and increasing my interest. After a lonely lunch, in which her face seemed ever before me, I took a taxi and drove direct to the bank. I crossed the marble-floored lobby and approached a desk rather doubtfully. A middle-aged man glanced up from his work, and listened quietly to my question, examining my card attentively.

"Ah, yes, United States consular service—I see. I regret to say that Mr. Adolph Krantz is not in the bank today. In fact he is out of town, possibly for a week. Yes, he left rather suddenly for Washington. Perhaps you might talk with his secretary."

I hesitated, yet almost as quickly decided to see what might develop.

"I will if you please, for just a moment."

"Very good, sir. The third door down that corridor to the left. You will find it ajar, I think; walk right in."

I proceeded as he directed, the glass partitions of the bank on one side, the other divided into small private offices, the equipment plainly handsome. The third door stood partly open, giving me a glimpse within before I ventured to enter. The place had far more the appearance of a private library than a downtown business office. A woman was bending over the further desk, busied at some work. With heart beating somewhat faster I ventured to open the door sufficiently wide to enter.

There was no one else present, but her head instantly lifted, and she rose to her feet with a quick smile, and outstretched hand, coming directly toward me.

"Mr. Philip Severn, at last," she exclaimed pleasantly. "My faith is rewarded."

"Your faith," I echoed, rallying from my surprise at this greeting. "Then you were expecting me?"

"I have never felt a very serious doubt. Does that sound odd? Let me close the door, and then we will sit down and talk. I am never disturbed when the door is shut. Here is the best place. Yes, Mr. Severn, I was certainly curious would cause you to seek me, even if there was no other motive. I did not phone, so you came here."

She Did Not Move, or Glance Up.

"I had but two choices—to seek information either through Adolph Krantz or Sarah Waldron. I chose to try Krantz first."

"And you really had no suspicion I was to be found here?"

"None whatever. Why should I? Not even yet do I know whom I am speaking with."

"Oh, yes, you do—Marie Gessler, revolutionist, messenger to the Chilean Junta." She laughed, her eyes sparkling. "Does not that satisfy?"

"Far from it; I believe I am entitled to even more."

"Indeed you are. I have the honor of being also private secretary to Mr. Adolph Krantz. Now, what next?"

"Well, when he writes you a check, what name does he make it payable to?"

"Let me see; did you ever know any one called Tom Longdale?"

"Did I? Why, great Scott! you cannot mean that you are actually Helen?"

"Oh, yes, it is; little girls grow up, you know. And now if you will be very good and quiet I am going to tell you just how it all happened. What led me to become a desperate conspirator, and—well, yes—a famous detective. Are you all ready for my confession?"

She rested her hand on mine, and permitted my fingers to close over it, in a spirit of frank good fellowship.

"Then listen; it may make you shudder in some of its blood-curdling details, and possibly you may consider my actions very unwomanly. Now just be quiet until I finish."

Her eyes met mine earnestly, but I felt I could perceive a certain pleading in her depths.

"I am Tom Longdale's sister, Helen. As you doubtless know, financially there is no necessity for my seeking employment. Indeed, I did not seek it, but was induced to accept this position at the request of Mr. Krantz, who has been a lifelong friend of my father's. I enjoy the work, however, and have been here now nearly three years. Adolph Krantz is a most lovable man, and I am devoted to his service. He is an Austrian by birth, and has found it more or less difficult to get away from that influence. Much money from Europe passes through his hands in financing various schemes, and among others this revolutionary fund was entrusted to him. At first he accepted this in the ordinary course of business, without suspecting its purpose, but later learned how the money was being expended. The moment he became doubtful, Mr. Krantz absolutely severed all connections with these plotters and their schemes. While this was thoroughly understood officially, in Washington, where he reported his suspicion, certain circles, engaged in underhand work, still believed he could be used for their purposes."

"Yet he accepted the trust?"

"In a way, yes; but with perfectly loyal intent. As soon as word secretly reached him that he was to be thus used, he laid the full facts before the officials of this bank. I was present as his secretary, and learned then for the first time what I have already told you. They advised that he make the plot known immediately to the authorities at Washington. He was directed to accept the order, and this, through seeming co-operation, learn the details connected with it. There was delay; for some reason Alva was not quite ready to go ahead, and refused to draw the money. Proof of conspiracy was lacking until this was consummated. Mr. Krantz, being afraid that he would be followed if he went again to Washington, delegated me to go, as I was entirely unknown. The Secret Service there outlined a plan designed to hurry matters. I was to be sent direct to these men—Alva, in particular—with positive instructions from the higher powers in Washington to draw the money and get busy. As I speak Spanish easily, and took the name of a well-known female revolutionist now in this country, but unknown even to Alva, the task did not seem a specially dangerous one."

She paused for a moment, her mind gathering up the odds and ends of narrative.

"It is not necessary that I go further into detail. I met Captain Alva as planned, and was taken to the place where his gang gathered. Krantz was there with the money, and my message compelled the Chilean to accept, and receipt for it. Government agents were stationed in Jersey City to intercept him on his way back to New York. He never got far enough to fall into their hands; before he had driven four blocks he was murdered and robbed. The rest of the story you already know."

"The money was actually in that valise, then?"

"Some money was, but not all. We were afraid it might be opened before an arrest could be made. Each package had real money on the outside; altogether the amount did not exceed fifteen hundred dollars, and those bills were all marked."

"But you suspected Wine? I know of your call at his office."

"I wondered if you did. Were you there then?"

"Yes, I followed you in."

"I wish I had known; I would have ventured more than I dared to alone. I suspected—yes; but that was all. I possessed no facts, but I frightened him so when I exhibited that hat-pin I felt absolutely convinced that he was guilty."

"You had no reason to believe he possessed such a weapon?"

"None whatever; I merely took a chance. I think now the pin used belonged to Sarah Waldron, but how it came there can only be determined through a confession by her husband."

Her eyes lifted again to mine, questioning, and a bit anxious.

"Was my course right or wrong, Philip Severn?"

"Undoubtedly right, although I imagine few girls would have had the courage."

"You believe in me still? In the woman?"

My handclasp tightened, and her eyes dropped before the message she must have instantly read in mine.

"This has been a test of us both, which we will never regret," I answered soberly, "for it has brought faith, hope, love; is this not true?"

She did not move, or glance up, but I caught the whispered response of her lips.

(THE END.)

Alone in the Jungle.

Mrs. Clement, an English woman who has achieved a reputation as a traveler and explorer says: "To be alone even for a minute in the jungle is alarming, for such is the profound silence all around that one has a terrifying sense of being ludicrously watched by unseen things."

Of the forest noises one of the most uncanny is the howling of baboons. "When they are close at hand, the whole air is alive with the din, so that you cannot tell from which direction it proceeds. Every nerve in your body tingles, and there is a curious fascination in the great volume of sound."

WHAT THE CHILDREN WANTED

One Might Think It Was Not Altogether Miss Willet's Golden Voice That Entranced Them.

An entertainment was being given in the village school. When the program was half over the faces of the scholars shone with agreeable anticipation, for the next item was to be a vocal solo by Miss Willet, who on many occasions had delighted the school with her singing.

Finally the chairman made the announcement: "I am very sorry to say, children, that Miss Willet has contracted a cold and will be unable to sing. She is willing, however, to recite a poem instead if you wish to hear it. Do you?"

Several heads in the rear of the room became grouped as if in earnest conversation. Then they evidently elected a spokesman. "Please, sir," said the boy, "if Miss Willet don't mind, we'd rather have her get up and try to sing; and if her throat's too sore to make a noise she can make her funny faces while the pianist plays the tune."—London Tit-Bits.

Attack Premature.

"Why did you strike this haberdashery clerk?"

"Your honor," said the large, uncouth person, "he showed me a collar and said it was a 'perfect dear.'"

"Well," snorted the judge, "what did you hit him in the store for? Couldn't you wait until after closing time and catch him in an alley?"—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Clear Case.

"I don't take prohibition cases," said the lawyer.

"But I'm an innocent man, I tell you. I'm charged with having liquor in my possession, but I'm the person who called up the police department and stated that I had found twenty-four quarts of Scotch buried in my backyard."

"You say you called up the police and let them carry off that Scotch when you might have concealed it in a hundred different places and defied the true owner to get possession of it?"

"Certainly."

"Well, you must be innocent. I'll engage to defend you."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

She Did.

SUNDAY SERVICES:
 Sunday School 9:45
 Morning Service 11:00
 Epworth League 7:00
 Evening Service 7:45

The Sunday morning service last Sunday was given to the Epworth League study book, John Wesley, Jr., which the league is studying for eight weeks. The text of the discourse was the words of Jesus, "Thy Kingdom Come." The central thought was that Christ was always full of a great passionate longing for the full coming of the spiritual kingdom of God and this overmastering desire completely dominated His life and literally destroyed out of His life, day by day, everything that could hinder the highest possible efficiency of His daily life and work for the kingdom. It was then shown that every one who is a true follower of Christ is really like Christ in this as in all things, so that the true Christian has Christ's passion for the kingdom and absolutely will not allow anything else to get a hold upon his heart interest as to interfere with his greatest possible effectiveness, day by day, for the Kingdom of God.

It was pointed out that such a genuine interest in the kingdom of God is sure to prompt its possessor to be always on the keen lookout for news of the progress of the kingdom; always filled with delight when he can find any news of real advance or victory for the kingdom; always in dead earnest in his efforts to learn where and when and how he can do more for the kingdom of God. All this, it was held, means that a true follower of Christ will be always studying extensively and intensively whatever literature he can find which will give him information on what the armies of Christ are doing and how he can be more expert in doing his part to bring complete victory to the kingdom of God.

All this was the purpose of this Epworth League study book, and it was declared to be full of inspiration to help develop just this kind of genuine Christian life. The discourse closed with a strong appeal to all who bear the name of Christ to buy and study more of the literature of the church, to have the church paper in every home and see that it is thoroughly read every week, to be like their Master, full of holy enthusiasm for the full coming of His kingdom.

The department of extension is doing some survey work preliminary to completing the constituency roll, so that the church shall know just what is its task. It is felt that a general movement is needed to induce a larger percentage of the people of the whole community to be more regular in attendance upon the services of God's house. This also comes in the work of the department of extension. Every attendance at the services of God's house is one vote for Christ and His kingdom. Every willing absence from the services of God's house is one vote against Christ and His kingdom. And the people of the world do not misunderstand this kind of a vote. "Which way are you going to vote this next Sunday?"

Should Be Protection For Boreas. It is to be hoped that, with all the modern improvements, a mode will be discovered of getting rid of bores, for it is too bad that a poor wretch can be punished for stealing your pocket handkerchief or gloves and that no punishment can be inflicted on those who steal your time and with it your temper and patience, as well as the bright thoughts that may have entered your mind but were frightened away by the bore—the Irishman who lost his fortune before he got it. —Lord Byron.

Maryland Trees. The majority of the fruit trees flower early in the spring, usually before the leaves appear, and their dainty blossoms form a charming picture in addition to yielding a delightful fragrance. The apple blossoms are usually white with a red tinge or blush; the peach pink; the pear, plum and cherry white; and the quince, which flowers later, a delicate shell pink.

Martello Towers. A round masonry tower designed to form a part of coast defense is called a Martello tower, being so named for its inventor. The original Martello tower was situated in the Gulf of San Fiorenzo, Corsica. These towers became popular about 1800, but their use has in most cases been discontinued long ago, as they were found to be of little practical value.

Awful Thought. A young woman was dining at a strange house. On the table was a dish of boiled onions and when her hostess was serving these and remarked that, of course, she liked them, the young woman replied enthusiastically: "Oh yes, indeed; if there is one vegetable I like it is boiled onions." Just think, if her hostess' husband had been a chiropodist!—Boston Transcript.

Lionel Barrymore in "The Claw" Coming to Princess Feb. 5

Lionel Barrymore in "The Claw" which comes to the Princess theatre, Chicago, starting Sunday, February 5, scored a real hit in New York City and Boston. "The Claw" strikes in to the bone. It is cynical, savage, cruel. It tells the story of the infatuation of a famous man for an intriguing girl, of how she wheedles and bleeds him, of his debasement and his eventual destruction. E. F. Harkins in the Boston Advertiser says, "it is one of the most powerful roles in modern drama. The American stage has seen nothing like it since Mansfield was blazing around the country in 'Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde' and 'The Parisian Romance'."

Here then, is strong meat, and New York and Boston playgoers passed by the lollipops in favor of this harder fare. This was most disorganizing to the majority of managers who thought they at least had learned what the public wants; and it was correspondingly gratifying to Arthur Hopkins who produced "The Claw." The management of the Princess theatre in Chicago is giving special attention to out-of-the-city mail orders and out of town patrons will receive the same attention as will purchasers at the ticket window.

DAIRY HINTS

SANITARY HOUSE FOR DAIRY

Necessary Where Milk Is Handled, Because of Its Susceptibility to Contamination.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

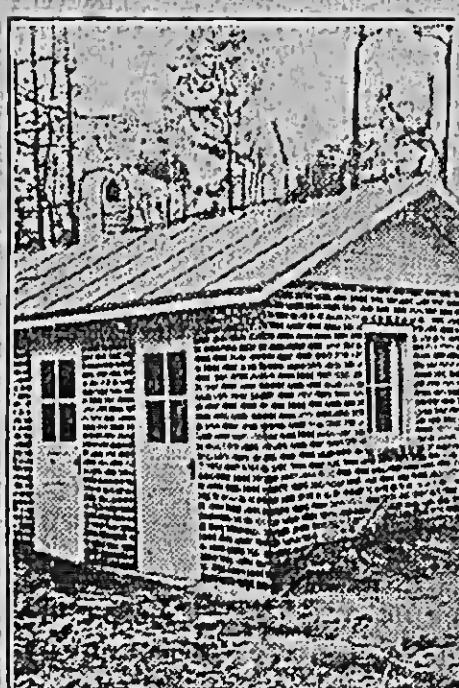

Because of the delicate nature of milk and its susceptibility to contamination by dirt and odors, dangerous to the health of the consumer and likely to cause loss to the producer, a dairy house constructed on sanitary principles and properly located is a necessity on every farm that sells milk.

The regulations of the different states vary, but it is usually found desirable to have such building a short distance from the barn, or, if it adjoins the stable, to have only an outside entrance. Prompt removal of the milk to facilitate cooling and prevent contamination is always necessary. A concrete, brick or tile house with asbestos or slate roof, although comparatively costly, is fireproof, durable and sanitary and requires few repairs. Other materials that may be used are stone, cement blocks and wood.

The floor of the milk house is particularly important, and concrete, because of its ability to withstand moisture, decay and wear, is the best material. Although dressed tongue-and-groove lumber may be used for the inside walls, cement plaster makes the best finish. Light is important, and window space should be equal to at least 10 per cent of the floor space. To keep the air sweet and dry good ventilation is needed. In some climates windows and doors will provide it, but in most localities other means, such as a ventilating flue, will be found necessary. Flies and other germ-carrying insects must be kept out with screens so arranged that they will not interfere with the operation of the windows and doors.

Plentiful supplies of cold and hot water, for cooling and for cleansing and sterilizing, are a necessity. If a high-class product is to be turned out, the unavoidable spilling of milk and the use of quantities of water demand an adequate drainage system that will carry the waste well away from the house. Most local and state health departments have specific regulations on this subject.

All of these problems of dairy-house construction are discussed in detail in Farmers' Bulletin 1214, "Farm Dairy Houses," just issued by the dairy division of the United States Department of Agriculture, copies of which can be obtained free of charge. In this bulletin plans and pictures are given of nine types of houses, suitable for farms having from ten to several hundred cows; for dairies where milk is sold in cans or bottles or is made into butter; and for those using hand or power machinery. Those who are interested in any particular plan may obtain blue prints from the division of agricultural engineering, bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

SOY BEAN HAY AS ROUGHAGE

Tennessee Station Finds It Superior to Corn Stover in Producing Milk and Butter.

The Tennessee station compared soy-bean straw and corn stover as roughage in the production of milk and butter. The ration containing soy-bean straw was found superior to that containing corn stover. This ration produced more pounds of milk and butter fat and produced them more cheaply than the cornstover ration. In every case there was less loss in milk and butter fat during the feeding of soy-bean straw than during the feeding of corn stover. It was concluded from these tests that soy-bean straw is a valuable addition to the roughage in the feeding of dairy cows.

PROTECT YOUNG FRUIT TREES

Mice Can Be Discouraged by Tramping Down Snow—Rodents Burrow in Grass and Refuse.

Protect young fruit trees from mice. Wire screens about the trees are good. Tramp the snow well about each tree. This will often discourage the mice working around it. They like to burrow in grass and other refuse near the tree under the snow and eat the bark.

HOME TOWN HELPS

GIVE THOUGHT TO THE BIRDS

New York Authority Urges Prospective Home Builders to Remember Feathered Friends.

Home owners, in planting trees, shrubs and vines, should take into consideration the idea of growing plants that will attract birds, according to Professor Alan F. Arnold of the New York State College of Forestry, who finds that there is a possibility of many of our native birds disappearing altogether for lack of food and shelter.

The list of trees, shrubs and vines attractive to birds includes many of our most ornamental plants. There is no more valuable evergreen tree for ornamental purposes than the native red cedar; it also provides the best shelter and nesting sites for birds, while they find food in the berries and insects commonly found on the tree.

The native flowering dogwood and the Chinese flowering crabapple are two particularly beautiful trees that are favorites with the birds. The gray-stemmed dogwood, honeysuckle, American elder and shepherdy are also serviceable to the birds, and ornamental. The Virginia creeper, one of the most popular vines, furnishes nesting sites for birds and draws the attention of the birds away from grapes, apples and peaches.

"If one has a place where plants of a wilder sort can be introduced," said Professor Arnold, "and wishes to make a special point of attracting birds, there is a great variety of native plants that could not perhaps be used for more finished effects, but here would be just the thing."

CIVIC DUTY SHARED BY ALL

Cultivation and Spread of Public Spirit and of Patriotism Must Not Be Evaded.

Civic responsibility, when the qualifying age is reached, rests on all alike. Furthermore, the notion of one's public duty has during the last few years broadened considerably. Young and old are learning that voting, though a serious and weighty affair, is but one small part of a citizen's duty.

A citizen's business is to mind the law and help to see that others mind it.

A citizen's business is to be a good neighbor, to pay his debts, to collaborate in works of neighborhood benefit, to assist effort for the general social welfare.

He has not done enough when he has made himself rich. He may build himself a home of great costliness and beauty. He may surround himself with the appointments of ease and leisure. These things are legitimate rewards of honest, earnest toil.

But if he is a good citizen, he cares not merely to have, but to share.

Children taught to be unselfish in their games and diligent in their studies have laid their primary and fundamental lesson in citizenship.

The habits they acquire, of industry and generosity, will make them in mature years beloved and respected; as examples of public spirit and of patriotism.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Beauty as Civic Asset.

If we want to draw self-supporting outsiders to the city as a place of residence, beauty attracts more quickly than anything else, asserts the Indianapolis News. A good many hold to the view that this argument applies only to the more wealthy districts. There is nothing more false than this. It applies equally to the working home districts. There are working home districts in this city which, if left alone, will remain beauty spots. The houses are set back from the sidewalk sufficiently to admit of flower beds and lawns, which in summer are most attractive. These districts should be protected by a zoning law that would not permit a grocery store or a garage to get into their midst.

Analysis of the situation will show that by spending a little money the taxable value of certain districts can be raised so it will cost the public nothing and a beauty spot will be added to the city.

Argument for Clean Streets.

We notice in the description of the New Jerusalem, as given us by St. John in Revelation, that there are streets, and it is very certain that these streets are perfectly clean and that it will be required of all who would be a dweller in eternity that they must be of cleanly habits.

We may depend that in the final day of reckoning it will count heavily against people who make a practice of throwing paper or other refuse in the street or spitting in improper places, for it will be taken for granted that they would in like manner defile and litter up the city of our God and will not be wanted.—Cleveland Plain Dealer Correspondence.

Doing Well.

"I guess my daughter has taken a course in housework at college." "Heh?" "She writes that she is on the scrub team."

Psychological Effect. Corporations put the word "congruity" on their street cars and they say that seeing the word so often affects employees. Perhaps it also affects the public. Courtesy from the public toward the employee is as important as courtesy on the part of the worker.—Chicago American.

John Barleycorn. "Sir John Barleycorn" is a personification of malt liquor whether in the form of ale or beer. The expression is common in both England and Scotland. The name is the subject of an old ballad ascribed to Robert Burns, the Scotch poet, although all he did was to alter, slightly, parts of it.

The department of public works and buildings, of the state of Illinois, today announced the rejection of the bids for approximately 4,000,000 barrels of Portland cement which were received December 28.

This action followed a careful consideration after a series of investigations on the part of the department. On January 10 the state of Wisconsin also received bids for that state's requirements for Portland cement. An analysis of the Wisconsin bids and of the Illinois bids reveals the fact that the Illinois cement mills quoted the state of Wisconsin delivered prices, which after freight has been deducted, result in a mill price approximately seven and one-half cents per barrel lower than quoted Illinois. The department feels that the prices of cement received at the December 28 letting are too high and do not reflect the present economic conditions, the mill prices being the same as were in effect during the latter part of 1921.

Bradley at Allendale.

"Ah," said the professor at a football match, "I can see that success at this sport can be attained only by perfect co-operation among the players, each subordinating his own individuality to that of the organization of which he is a part." CLOTHES FOR OUTDOORING
SOUND A FEW NEW NOTES

CLOTHES for outdooring, in any sort of climate, make their appearance very early in the year, and those for southern tourists are especially interesting—not because every one tours—but because they are the vanguard of spring and summer styles. They include sport clothes for specific uses, and others for more general wear.

One of the outstanding items in the new lines is the adoption of full knickerbockers, instead of skirts, to be worn with tailored blouses and with coats or sweaters. They are sensible and smart, made of the heavier wool fabrics, and worn in the company of wool stockings and walking shoes, and with plain hats. The knickerbockers are in quiet colors, as tans, browns and mixtures, and tail is favored for coats, but sometimes these are in the high colors, with bright green the most vivid among them.

A new note is sounded in the adoption of Navajo designs in the decoration of wool garments. The handsome outdooring suit pictured here has appropriated a Navajo motif for its embroidery and the warm shade of tan in woolly material used makes a charming background for it.

Rural Mail Carriers Not Exempt From License Fee

A mistaken report that rural mail carriers can secure licenses for their automobiles at the special price of $2 is causing Secretary of State Louis L. Emmerson considerable trouble.

The report came about through a bill making this provision which was passed by the last general assembly but was vetoed and did not become a law. The report has been widespread and numerous applications enclosing $2 are coming in from rural mail carriers in all parts of the state. There are 30,000 rural mail carriers in Illinois and most of them believe the act was enacted into a law.

The law was vetoed on the grounds that it was class legislation and for that reason was unconstitutional.

With 40 per cent of the work on the $1,000,000 harbor at Great Lakes completed in 1921, it is predicted that the improvement will be completed by Dec. 1, one of the supervisors of the building project declared.

This means that some rush work must be completed in ten months.

The contract was let last fall and sufficient funds were appropriated to start the project, with the promise that the rest would be forthcoming as the work progressed.

The fact that the naval training station personnel has been greatly reduced since the harbor work was started has resulted in no change in the plans for the improvement.

An average of a carload of stone is arriving daily but this will have to be speeded up to get enough on the grounds to complete the work by the first of December. Construction work will be resumed the 15th of April.

Attorney Ben H. Miller, president of the Lake County Bar association, has appointed Attorney Clarence W. Diver and William L. Strong to represent the Lake county bar at the convention of the American Bar association in Washington, D. C., on February 23 and 24.

A part of the Pecanica plant of the Nestle's Food Co., which was closed last week, has been leased by the Freeport Dairy & Products Co., who took charge of it on Tuesday. The company separates the cream from the milk received there and makes it into butter.

Springfield, Ill.—Claims involving millions of dollars filed against the state by relatives of those who died in the Eastland disaster at Chicago in 1915, were disallowed by the state court of claims of Illinois, it was announced. The claims have been pending since 1917.

Chicago's south shore merchants must wait at least another month before being linked with Milwaukee, M. J. Feron, general superintendent of transportation of the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee railroad, said this week. "Service will be established just as soon as rates and revenues have been figured out by the traffic department," said Mr. Feron. "We plan to make stops at Roosevelt road, 43rd street and 63rd street, and schedules must be gone into. It will be at least a month before we can get started."

Although they voted to take their milk away from the Milk Producers' Co-operative Marketing company, St. Charles dairymen will continue to support the organization, according to an Elgin paper, which states that almost unanimously they will donate five per cent of their monthly checks to the company.

K. V. Werden, aged 70, wealthy pioneer resident of Wauconda, died Wednesday at that place, and Peter Nimsgrén, also a Wauconda pioneer, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. H. J. Hagerty, at Libertyville, Thursday night. He was a veteran wayonmaker.

A $10,000 snow plow weighing 76,000 pounds and guaranteed to go through fourteen feet of snow, is the latest acquisition of the North Shore line, and while the officials of the line are not praying for a heavy snowstorm they are rather anxious to give the big plow a good tryout.

Ninety-six automobiles were destroyed and the Wilmette garage laid in ashes by a devastating blaze which swept the building Saturday morning. Damage exceeding $200,000 was the toll of the blaze.

The sponge gang, of Waukegan, traveled west Saturday morning, and raided the homes of Tardor Varda and Garriel Moldanan, near Wauconda. A gallon of liquor was found and information has been filed in the county court charging the two defendants with the possession of intoxicating liquor.

Weddings, No Bridegrooms.
Polynesia is probably the only place in the world where the marriage feast takes place without the presence of the bridegroom. For some unexplained reason the young man is "sent into the bush" when the bride becomes a member of his family, and he invariably remains there during the subsequent festivities. It is only when the guests have departed and the girl is left alone that messengers are dispatched for him.

Care of Palms.
Palms like plenty of air at their roots. On this account it is a good idea to stir the top soil in the pot with a little stick now and again. Wash the outside of the pot quite often to remove the dirt accumulation which makes the receptacle less porous. Give little water in cold weather, but more in the summer, never, however, allowing the soil to remain in a sodden state.

Incentive and Performance.
Critics are complaining that no real literature is being produced in this country. They seem to consider it useless, however, to try to explain why literature should be produced.

EVERYONE WANTS THE NEW HOUSEFROCKS AND APRONS

THE Christmas enrolling of the shops becomes a spring song, almost overnight. In the interval between Christmas and New Year's, windows are filled with summery clothes and fabrics, and the housewife makes her annual excursion in the pursuit of stiffs for house frocks and aprons, children's clothes and household "lineus."

House frocks and aprons are distractingly pretty this season, having long since turned from utility unalloyed to take on charms of their own. Their durability goes without saying, and both manufacturers of goods and designers undertake to contribute attractiveness to these matter-of-fact belongings. With combinations of plain and checked ginghams, or by touching up with organdie the heavier cottons, they have turned out crisp, smart, simple frocks that everyone wants because they are pretty. One of the simplest and most attractive models is pictured here, made of checked gingham, easy to slip into and as neat as wax. The narrow leather belt, supported by slides at the sides, is a new and very worthwhile style note in it.

Japanese crepe in bright colors, with applique trimmings made of cotton cloth in contrasting colors, makes gay and practical house frocks and aprons. These applique trimmings, of conventional flowers and fruits, are used on black saten for aprons that slip over warmer dresses, and they are in present demand. Unbleached cotton with applique of plain materials or cretonne make their cheerful contribution to the stock of utility aprons.

Many of the new models in dresses and aprons have elastic waist bands that keep them neatly adjusted and make them comfortable.

cause it keeps the soil fertility at home.

In selling feeds to dairy cows the farmer has a wide choice of markets—bad, good, and very good. Few men discriminate closely enough between these markets. If a wheat buyer offers 1 or 2 cents a bushel more than other buyers he gets the wheat; if a wool buyer offers half a cent a pound more he gets the wool. But if one cow returns $3 from a dollar's worth of feed and another only $2, it is scarcely noticed. There is a difference of a dollar in the income every time each of these two cows eats a dollar's worth of feed.

According to estimates of the United States Department of Agriculture, the average dairy cow in the United States produces annually about 4,000 pounds of milk and 100 pounds of butter fat. According to 40,000 yearly individual cow records recently tabulated by the department, the average cow testing association cow produces 5,930 pounds of milk and 240 pounds of butter fat a year. The world's records are 37,381.4 pounds of milk and 1,203.09 pounds of butter fat in a year. There is plenty of room for improvement, it would seem, in the average production.

The keeping of individual cow records is easy. To test a half dozen samples of milk for butter fat requires, about half an hour. Weighing the milk, estimating the weight of roughage, and weighing the concentrates requires but little time. The testing of a composite sample of each cow's milk from two consecutive milkings once a month furnishes the figures from which the yearly production records can be computed. Any man competent to care for a dairy herd can easily learn to make the butter fat test and to keep feed and production records.

WINTER FEEDS FOR HEIFERS

Young Animals Should Not Be Compelled to "Rough It" During Cold Weather Period.

Young heifers should not be expected to "rough it" during the winter, but should have feed and shelter. The feeds should, of course include bulky feeds, such as silage, stover, hay, fodder, etc., and concentrates. The young animals should have enough such concentrates as cottonseed meal, wheat bran, shorts, rice flour, alfalfa, pen hay, peanut hay to develop body.

Practice of Testing Cows.
The practice of testing cows to determine their milk and butter fat production and feed consumption by means of cow-testing associations has become widespread. There are now 452 associations of this kind in the United States.

BEAUTY IN THIS MILL TOWN

North Billerica, Mass., Declared a Joy to Visitors, Also Has Few Labor Troubles.

It might seem rather far-fetched to proclaim a relationship between the profession of landscape design and the labor problem—a relationship, moreover, that develops into a benedictory influence, helping in a modest way to render this problem less acute.

There is evidence of this fact at North Billerica, Mass., within twenty miles of Boston, where large mills are situated, says Ebert Haas in the Boston Transcript. The owners of the mills have, as one phase of their welfare work during the last fifteen years, engaged a landscape designer of national reputation to establish and maintain suitable planting about employees' homes, the plant and other buildings under the company's control. To create and maintain an interest among the mill employees in this work, the mills established a yearly competition, offering various prizes for the following activities:

The best kept premises, front and rear.

The training of vines on house, porch, arbors, trolley or other posts.

The slicing of window and porch boxes.

The designing and maintenance of flower gardens.

The establishing and care of vegetable gardens.

The result of these efforts is displayed in the general appearance of the town, through which no stranger can pass without carrying away a vivid impression of beauty and individuality. Yet North Billerica is not one of the modern garden cities created overnight as a result of sudden industrial development. It is part of the oldest mentioned in the histories of the Bay state. The Talbot mills and other industries are responsible for its growth, and the unusual relationship referred to has given it the not less unusual distinction of being a beautiful mill town.

WOULD PLANT USEFUL TREES

Easterner Makes a Good Suggestion Concerning a Proposed "Road of Remembrance."

Referring to the Road of Remembrance from Buffalo to New York city, which it is proposed to line on both sides with elm trees in memory of the dead of the World war, certainly such a road lined with large elm trees would present an imposing appearance. But would not this memorial road be just as imposing with the added advantage of future usefulness? If the trees planted were such as the statey walnut, the hickory and the white oak? asks a correspondent of the New York Sun.

Has not the time come for the planting of trees for real use rather than merely for ornamentation? and should not ornamentation and utility go hand in hand in such a matter? Is not the domestic supply of these valuable and useful woods much below what it should be, and should there not be a new supply started wherever possible?

If the planting of trees along the roadside is done with the idea of their being a memorial to those who gave their all to their country during the World war, would not such memorials be emphasized in the beginning by the planting of trees that will grow into usefulness as well as furnish shade and a magnificent appearance?

Community Ice Machines.
There are now in operation throughout the United States many central electric stations provided with ice-making apparatus. The unused power of the stations during the "light load" of the summer is employed to run compression motors for freezing artificial ice.

The plan has been especially successful with small plants supplying electric power and light for towns of less than 5,000 inhabitants.

In some cases the earnings of the auxiliary ice-making apparatus equal the annual return on the whole plant for other purposes.—New York Herald.

Farmers' Lives Are Longest.
The metropolitan industrial worker has one chance in eight of reaching seventy years of age and the farmer one chance in three. This report was made by the building trades committee of the New York United Hospital fund, which asserted that deaths in industrial centers were greatly increasing because of the breakdown of hearts, arteries, kidneys and digestive systems in middle life.

Between Doctors.
"Didn't I tell you that Lawyer Smith's case was going to be troublesome?"
"What, is he dead?"
"Worse yet; he is disputing my bill."

To him came the lady from next

"Johnny, did you break my win-

Johnny paused in his stride and eyed her thoughtfully.
"Did you see me do it?" he asked cautiously.
"No, I didn't, but—"
"Then I didn't!"
And he resumed his marching.

Harding Tells Farm Meeting Great Lakes Project Is Feasible.

SAYS FARMER MUST BE AIDED

Points Need of Machinery to Furnish Working Capital to Farmer Easily and Quickly—U. S. Must Meet Present Crisis.

Washington, Jan. 25.—Feasibility of the St. Lawrence-Great Lakes waterways project "is unquestioned," President Harding declared before the national agricultural conference.

"I have spoken," the President said,
"of the advantage which Europe enjoys because of its easy access to the sea, the cheapest and surest transportation facility. In our own country is presented one of the world's most attractive opportunities for extension of the seaways many hundreds of miles inland.

"The heart of the continent, with its vast resources in both agriculture and industry, would be brought in communication with all the ocean routes by the execution of the St. Lawrence waterways project. To enable ocean-going vessels to have access to all the ports of the Great Lakes would have a most stimulating effect upon the industrial life of the continent's interior.

"The feasibility of the project is unquestioned, and its costs, compared with some other great engineering works, would be small. Disorganized and prostrate, the nations of central Europe are even now setting their hands to the development of a great continental waterway, which, connecting the Rhine and Danube, will bring water transportation from the Black to the North sea, from Mediterranean to the Baltic.

"If nationalistic prejudice and economic difficulties can be overcome by Europe they certainly should not be formidable obstacles to an achievement less expensive and giving promise of yet greater advantages to the peoples of North America. Not only would the cost of transportation be greatly reduced, but a vast population would be brought overnight in immediate touch with the markets of the entire world."

Delegates from all sections of the country representing agriculture and industry dependent on it assembled here for the opening of the national conference called to consider the present situation confronting the farmer, and to lay down a permanent agricultural policy.

Development of a thorough code of law and business procedure, with the proper machinery of finance to assure the farmer as generous a supply of working capital on as reasonable terms as is granted to other industries, was advocated by President Harding in his address.

"An industry," the President said,
"more vital than any other, in which nearly half the nation's wealth is invested, can be relied upon for good security and certain returns."

Declaring that in the matter of what may be called fixed investment capital the disadvantage of the farmer so impressed public opinion that the federal farm loan board was established to meet the need.

"Compared with other industries," he continued, "the farmer is that agriculture, thus deprived of easy access to both investment and accommodation capital, has prospered even so well."

Lines on which financial support of agriculture may be organized, Mr.
Harding said, are suggested in the plan of the federal farm loan board and in the rural finance societies which have been so effective in some European countries.

"The co-operative loaning associations of Europe have been effective incentives to united action by farmers," he continued, "and have led them directly into co-operation in both production and marketing which have contributed greatly to the stabilization and prosperity of agriculture."

Whether these organizations are considered as means to buying the farmers' requirements in a cheaper market, the President asserted, or to selling his products in a more remunerative one,
"the conclusion in all cases is the same; it is that the farmer is as good a business man as any other if he has the chance."

The manufacturer, Mr. Harding said, whose turnover is rapid, finds he can borrow money from the bank on short-time notes when he needs working capital, and his money will come back to him in time to meet his short-time obligations. On the other hand, he continued, the farmer's turnover is a long one; from a year in most cases to sometimes three years in the cattle industry.

Whenever Rev. Sparrow Jones called to set a plate of gingerbread before him and then ply him with what she called "ligious 'spoundings."

"What for does de Lawd send epidemics onto de land?" she asked him one day.

"When folks get so bad dey must be removed, some of 'em, Sister Miranda, den de Lawd permits de comin'

he took a large bite of gingerbread.

"Uh," said Aunt Miranda. "Ef dat's

Like a Compliment.

A faithful old servant in a southern family has recently become a grandmother. "What does Libby call her new baby, Mandy?" the old woman

"She named her 'Gabrielle,' miss—

"Why, the liden, Mandy. You know my name is not Gabrielle. You've called me 'Miss Katie' all your life."

"Yas'm, Miss Katie—dat I does. 'But when it comes to naming babies after

If one is 25 per cent unselfish, he's probably normal.

If you would be happy scatter happiness.

No person whose nerves are continually irritated, whose appetite and digestion are disturbed, or who doesn't sleep well has more than half his normal chance for success in life. For weakness, debility, anemia and general lack of tone are a serious handicap to anybody.

Those who drink tea or coffee are often sufferers from these conditions. Tea and coffee contain caffeine, a substance which has a decided stimulant action on the nerves and brain cells.

Each cup of strong coffee contains about as large a dose of caffeine as your doctor would ordinarily give to a very sick person.

You can readily see that the effect of giving this stimulant regularly to a well person might finally have a tendency to make him sick.

If you want to avoid a very common cause of irritation and enjoy restful sleep, good digestion, and all the feeling of vigor and robust endurance that comes to healthy, normal people, quit tea and coffee, and drink Postum, instead. It is a rich, coffee-like cereal beverage—perfectly delicious!

Order Postum from your grocer today. Drink this fragrant, aromatic beverage and see how much better you'll feel—able to do more without becoming fatigued—as thousands have discovered for themselves.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water.
Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes. Sold by all grocers.

"The Little Minister" at the Crystal Theatre

In making "The Little Minister", from James M. Barrie's famous story, Vitagraph adhered closely to the novel. The story is in itself a work of simplicity, dealing for the most part with the humble life of the poor weavers in the village of Thrums. It was to get this atmosphere and give the production realism that Vitagraph strove for in transferring the story to celluloid. The atmosphere of the Scotch hamlet has been maintained. The thatch roofs, the plain little church, the red coats of the soldiers, the clean dress of the Scotch, and other little touches which go to make this production one that will be long remembered.

Facts About the Milk Marketing Company

It is reported that W. J. Kittle and the rest of the old guard who are largely responsible for the present tangled affairs of the Chicago Milk Marketing company are busy collecting proxies in the hope of controlling the annual meeting of the company in February.

It is unthinkable that the milk producers of the Chicago dairy district should again turn the management of their affairs over to this group of men whose record is one of continual mismanagement. We strongly advise our readers to refuse to give their proxies to Kittle, Potter, Reese, Omann, Benhart, or any one of the old guard. Come to the meeting and cast your vote yourself, or if you cannot do that, send your proxy to Thomas Keene, secretary of the Marketing company at Chicago. Mr. Keene can be depended on to vote them in the best interest of the milk producers.

Two principal causes are responsible for the present difficulties of the Marketing company:

1. The mismanagement of the Kittle crowd, which piled up an enormous debt.

2. Desertion of milk producers, large numbers of whom have broken their contracts, leaving the entire expense of operating the company to those who remained loyal.

Under its new management the company has made remarkable progress in cutting down expenses, paying its debts, and getting on a business basis. Its outstanding debts, other than for milk, have been reduced from $350,000 August 1, to $45,000 January 1, according to the executive committee. The milk debt of $412,000 August 1, was reduced to $300,000 January 1. Progress has also been made in collecting back spreads and past due payments on stock.

With this improved management the company would have come through with flying colors had it not been for the wholesale desertions which began with the fifty per cent spread in May and continued until now the burden of operating expenses is being borne by about 10 per cent of the milk of the district. There are too many people who believe in letting the other fellow operate for their benefit. In the Chicago dairy district the farmers who got out from under the marketing company have profited temporarily, but if the company goes on the rocks they are in for a long period of hard times. The only hope of profit in the Chicago dairy district is through co-operative marketing.

The present management has made good progress in straightening out the company's affairs. Steps are to be taken to collect the back spread. If successful, this will bring in sufficient funds to pay off the company's debts. Then, with its country plants as a basis, the company can continue to operate. It will not occupy a commanding influence in the Chicago milk market for the present, but if it can be kept alive until producers generally get a bellyful of the old method of selling milk, they will come back and we can then hope to have a big successful Marketing company.
